Care where home comes first

The days are gone where we had to settle for a care home in our later years. With a live-in carer, those with full-time care needs are able to be provided for in their own homes.

With reduced fall risk, the ability to maintain routines and less chance of social isolation, it's the increasingly popular alternative to the care home.

Help to live the life they want to live

With Elder, a dedicated home care professional moves into a spare room, helping with everything required to make life as good as it can be, tasks such as:

Household maintenance

Washing and dressing

Personal hygiene

Favourite
meals

Medication prompting

Suitable for a wide range of needs

- ✓ Companionship
- ✓ Dementia
- ✓ Alzheimer's disease
- ✓ Parkinson's disease
- ✓ Stroke recovery
- ✓ Multiple sclerosis
- ✓ Cancer recovery
- ✓ Hospital discharge
- ✓ End of life support

Getting the arrangements right is all about understanding the skills that matter to you. We work with a broad range of professionals, who have experience caring for a variety of conditions and circumstances.

A better, more affordable solution

For many families, it's going to be a decision between live-in care and moving to a care home. Here are a few ways they compare.

	Elder	Care home
Cost per week	Starts from £795	Up to £2,000
Stay at home?	Yes	No
Residents per carer	1	Up to 8
Home value considered in means test?	No, so you're more likely to get state support	Yes, so you may have to sell your home

Elder are always on the end of the phone if you need anything and will accommodate your requests where possible.

– Teresa Rome

The company who really do care about the care you need. Always available to help in your care crisis - right there at the end of the phone, listening, caring, providing.

– Meg

My parents now have a happy house, full of smiles and laughter while being cared for with genuine compassion, capability and confidence.

– Dr. Lefton

Elder care has restored my faith in the human race, and England's failing care system... All at Elder take a bow!

– Paul

Better outcomes for everyone

Care at home is not just a nice idea, or good for referral revenue. It's proven to provide better outcomes:

Likelihood of a fall reduced by 33%

Likelihood of a hip fracture reduced by 46%

Keep pets, routines and possessions

Significantly less likely to be housebound

More likely to get funding
